Curso: Antropologia das Sociedades Caribenhas (I): histórias e etnografias
(Antropologia dos Colonialismos - MNA 828)

Professora: Olivia Gomes da Cunha

Nº de Créditos: 03 (créditos) 45 horas

Período: 1º Semestre de 2016

Dia/horário: 3ª Feira, 9:00 - 12.00 horas

Local: Sala de Reuniões Luiz de Castro Faria

O objetivo do curso é oferecer aos alunos um primeiro contato com temas que tradicionalmente têm orbitado na literatura antropológica sobre as socialidades caribenhas. Dividido em duas partes, o programa do primeiro semestre privilegiará estudos produzidos por historiadores e antropólogos e uma visão crítica das temáticas que pautaram estudos sobre as socialidades caribenhas na segunda metade do século XX. O curso pretende revisitar temas "clássicos" tais como família e parentesco, escravidão e "protocampesinato", bem como leituras caribenhas que se debruçam sobre os efeitos políticos e epistemológicos do conhecimentos produzidos sobre lugares, pessoas e processos na região. Nessa primeiro módulo nossa intenção é repensar as (des)continuidades dos modelos de análise que se pretendem "locais", "históricos" e comparados, combinando leituras de natureza teórica e etnográfica.
